

PRESIDENT MADE HIS SELECTIONS

WISCONSIN MAN APPOINTED TO PLACE ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

OTHER PLACES ARE FILLED

Louisiana Man Named As Chief Justice—Possible Successor to Prof. Meyer.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—President Taft today sent to the United States senate the following nominations:

Associate Justices: Judges Willis Van Devanter of Wyoming; Joseph Tucker Lamar of Georgia.

Judges of the court of commerce: Martin A. Knapp, now chairman of the interstate commerce commission, for five years; Robert W. Archbold, now United States district judge for the middle district of Pennsylvania, for four years; William H. Hunt, now judge of customs and appeals, formerly United States district judge of Montana, for three years; John Emmitt Carland of South Dakota, for two years; Julian W. Mack, now judge of the appellate circuit court of the first Illinois district, for one year.

For members of the interstate commerce commission: C. C. McChord of Kentucky. These two appointments are to fill vacancies caused by the elevation of Judge Knapp to the commerce court and the retirement of Cockrell of Missouri.

As consuls: Leo J. Keena of Michigan, to Florence, Italy; and Edward D. Winslow of Illinois, to Munster, Germany; Maxwell Blake of Missouri, as consul at Tangiers.

Makes No Statement. Madison, Wis., Dec. 12.—In the absence of any official information as to his appointment as interstate commerce commissioner, Prof. J. H. Meyer, chairman of the Wisconsin railroad commission, refused to comment on the subject.

The consular as to his successor connects the names of Prof. J. H. Commons of the state university; Thomas H. Gill of Milwaukee, formerly counsel for the Wisconsin Central, and William H. Brown, secretary of the Milwaukee Merchants' and Manufacturers' association.

The probability of either of these being named is considered somewhat remote by men in official quarters who discussed the subject today.

Gov. Davidson, however, is authority for the statement that Prof. Meyer will in all probability be able to serve both offices for the time being, giving the governor ample time to name a successor. Aside from Prof. J. H. Commons, Dr. Richard T. Ely, and Prof. T. W. Pences, all of the state university are in public speculation today as to a successor.

MARINE REVOLT IS QUICKLY ENDED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Brazil Has Quelled the Second Insurrection Within the Past Thirty Days by Force of Arms.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 12.—Revolting mariners on Cobras Island formally surrendered today and fresh government troops occupied the barracks.

The mutineers in the garrison who composed a battalion of the marine corps, numbered about 600 men. Of these 200 were either killed or wounded. The others were taken prisoners by the destroyers while attempting to escape from the island during the night.

Two hundred citizens were either killed or wounded while watching the bombardment from the streets of the city or along the water front. Many government buildings were damaged, including the treasury, the foreign office and the departments of public works and telegraphs, all handsome structures.

Two land batteries, two warships and several destroyers took part in the bombardment of the island on Saturday, and twice during the engagement an armistice was allowed for the removal of the dead and wounded. Firing ceased entirely late in the evening, but no actual surrender of the rebels occurred, the commanders of the government forces deeming it the wiser course to await the coming of day.

The destroyers, however, were stationed within easy range of the island so as to prevent any attempt by the mutineers to escape. Toward midnight several boats put out and men could be seen swimming evidently with the intention of reaching the mainland. The destroyers bore down on them and made them prisoners.

On Sunday the chamber of deputies met to discuss the subject of a special session. The government believes it has the situation well in hand, for aside from a few naval cadets, the army and navy are loyal. A strict censorship is being maintained, but conditions within the city on Sunday were normal.

According to the newspapers, the causes leading to the second revolt are trivial, most of the demands made by the men in the last mutiny having been granted by the government.

DEAD LETTER SALE WAS HELD TODAY

Immense Throng Jostled One Another and Did for the Accumulated Packages.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—That all men, women and too for that matter, like to take a chance at getting something for nothing was evidenced today by the immense throng that attended the annual public sale of accumulated packages in the Dead Letter Office. Hundreds of people sought the chance to snail in package mail. They jammed the sale room from the hour the sale began, until it was concluded. All kinds of property was bought, from state candy and hair pills. Some jewelry, books and wearing apparel of more or less value went under the hammer, but the real bargains were few and far between. The public sale of Dead Letter stuff has been conducted each year in Washington for many years and each year the crowds that attend the sale are larger. The vigilance of the Postoffice Department in suppressing all enterprises that partake of the nature of a lottery has led to an agitation in recent years to do away with the Dead Letter auctions, which are as much of a gamble as anything ever devised in the lottery line. But the sales of unclaimed packages at public auction are directed by law, and there is apparently no way in which they can be abolished except by repealing the statute.

LEAGUE MAGNATES IN WINTER CONFAB

Series of Meetings Which Opened in New York City Today Will Be in Progress Most of the Week.

New York, Dec. 12.—All followers of the national game will be interested in the series of league meetings which began in the city today and will occupy the greater part of the week. Three distinct meetings of three different leagues are scheduled, and when the proceedings are concluded it is expected that several important points affecting the coming season now in the doubtful column will have been definitely settled.

Today the Eastern League magnates began their annual convalesce at the Waldorf-Astoria. The big little organization had a prosperous season this year and the owners of the several clubs were in a pleasant frame of mind when they went into session behind closed doors. Nevertheless, the proverbial harmony attending the annual meeting may not be written with quite so large an "I" as the public has been led to believe. The election of a president for the coming year is the matter concerning which the magnates are said to be not all of one mind and which may precipitate some lively discussion in the meeting. Patrick T. Powers hopes to be re-elected to the presidency and is understood to have the support of the club owners. Others, however, are said to be of the opinion that a change in the head of the league would be to the benefit of the organization and it is said to be their intention to de-throne the genial Pat and give the presidency to Ed Barrows, the Montreal manager. Barrows is an active candidate for the place and is said to be confident of election.

No strife is in sight for the annual meeting of the National League, which will be held tomorrow at the Hotel Brestlin. Thomas J. Lynch, who was made head of the league as a compromise after the bitter fight last year, is practically sure of re-election to the presidency. The New York, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Boston clubs are certain to vote for him, and it has no other supporters he will hold over as chief executive for another year by reason of a ruling made last winter that four of the eight votes would keep him in office. Messrs. Lough, Hermann and Dreyfus are in favor of making the term of office five years, instead of one, and they are going to fight hard for such a change in the league's constitution. This may cause some friction at the meeting tomorrow, but it is generally believed that Mr. Lynch will finally carry the day and will receive a unanimous vote. So far as can be learned no opposition candidate is being dreamed for the place.

Except for the election of four directors—two from the eastern and two from the western clubs—there will not be a great deal of business to occupy the attention of the American league magnates when they get together for their annual meeting at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. The presidency of the league will not be involved at this meeting, as Dan Johnson has been voted what is practically a life tenure of the job. The club owners will engage in some preliminary discussion as to the playing dates for 1911 and probably some deals and trades of players may be consummated. Then the magnates will adjourn, to reassemble in the spring to complete the schedule and otherwise arrange for the season of 1911.

STEAMERS RESCUE ALL PASSENGERS ON THE OLYMPIA

Wireless Report Show That Big Marine Disaster Has Been Averted.

Valdez, Alaska, Dec. 12.—Government steamers reached the wrecked Alaskan Steamship Company's steamer Olympia, shortly before six this morning and immediately began taking off the fifty-two passengers and fifty-four members of the crew, according to wireless dispatches here.

The steamer Olympia was wrecked on Ilich Island reef, forty miles from Cordova, Alaska, early on Sunday. The only information received was a brief message from the company's agent at Valdez, Alaska, saying that the vessel had gone on the reef.

A message went at 10 a. m. on Sunday said: "All hands on deck." This was taken as indicating that the passengers and crew were preparing to take the boat. The Olympia sailed from Seattle on Dec. 6 with twenty-six passengers and several hundred tons of freight.

The passenger first sailed on the steamer Northwest, which grounded in Pule Bay, San Juan Island, early on the morning of Dec. 2 a few hours after sailing from Seattle. They were brought back to Seattle and resumed their journey on the Olympia, which was hurriedly put into commission.

The Olympia had already called at Cordova, as only a few of the passengers were bound for there west of there, it is probable that not more than a dozen were aboard the vessel when it struck. Three Alaska liners have been wrecked within a radius of fifty miles of the point where the Olympia struck.

SEIDEL REFUSES TO ANSWER CHARGES

Milwaukee's Mayor Silent on Complaint of Catholic Ministers.

Milwaukee, Dec. 12.—Following a silence of several days upon public questions, Mayor Emil Seidel, today, declined to answer charges made Sunday in three Milwaukee Catholic churches against the newly inaugurated municipal dam. Several of which have been held here under the protective wing of the socialist.

"In so great an assembly, many men of questionable character must get in," said the Rev. Hiram F. Fairbanks of St. Patrick's Catholic church, Washington street and Indiana avenue, yesterday at high mass, in warning people of his congregation against the people's dances being given in the Auditorium under the auspices of the Association of Public Play and Social Education.

The pastor said that his face was set firmly against all Saturday night dances for his people, and in the next place he objected to such promiscuous gatherings and the acquaintances there formed.

It was impossible, he argued, for those in charge of the gathering to know whom they were introducing, and yet the introduction of a young man to a young woman sanctioned her dancing with him, when his character might be far from what it should be.

Then, too, he said, people were allowed freedom on the dancing floor which was forbidden on the streets or in the parks, under pain of arrest. It being permissible for a young man to step up to a young woman to whom he had never been introduced and ask her to dance. On these grounds he was against the whole scheme of holding such large dances.

He warned his people not to attend the dances in the future. The receipts at the dance Saturday night were $302.85, at the reduced rate of admission, while the expenses aggregated about $435. It is now planned to have the entire arena of the Auditorium for the next dance.

WONDERED WHY.

Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble. "I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak. "About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life. "During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it. "After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it. "In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone. "My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 145 pounds. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

LINK AND PIN. MUCH BUSINESS ON RAILROAD SUNDAY

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Many Extra Trains Run Into And Out of Janesville on St. Paul Railroad Yesterday. Sunday, a day of rest for workmen in nearly all occupations, is anything but a time of leisure for the railroad men, if business is running. When there are a large number of cars to be handled, the Sabbath day is the time generally selected for handling as much of the outgoing freight as is possible. The principal reason for this is that trains can be run through to their destinations better on that day with fewer delays, between stops to drop off or pick up cars at various points on their routes, than on week days. The passenger traffic is generally lighter and fewer passenger trains are run on Sunday and this gives the railroads the opportunities desired.

Yesterday was one of the busiest days of the season thus far at the St. Paul yards in this city. There was an unusually large amount of freight incoming and outgoing and many extra trains were run. Sunday afternoon and evening ten extra were sent out from Janesville, besides the regular trains handling freight. In three hours yesterday afternoon, between one o'clock and half past four, nine extra freight trains left the city. All stalls at the roundhouse were filled for a time and there were engines standing on the tracks outside. All extra treatment not testing were sent out on trains.

The position vacated by Mr. Haven is also bulletined for conductors, as is Conductor P. O. Lester's position on 615 and 616.

SEVERELY BURNED IN OIL EXPLOSIONS

Two Serious Accidents Occurred in Edgerton From the Explosion Of Kerosene Oil Cans.

Edgerton, Dec. 12.—Two accidents from explosions of kerosene oil cans in the total for the week in Edgerton. The first occurred on Monday night, when William Kirt a junk dealer, attempted to hasten the burning of the fire in a cook stove by pouring kerosene upon it from an oil can with the result that the can exploded throwing burning oil over his hands, and conveying at the same time the burning oil to the clothing of his son, aged about five years, who was quite severely burned about the head, face and neck, also some quite extensive burns about the legs. Mr. Kirt escaped with superficial burns about his hands. No great damage was done to the house.

Sunday morning a very serious accident occurred in the same way to Miss William Keesley who in the same manner of starting a fire, had an explosion of the oil, the force of the explosion being sufficiently strong to drive the bottom completely out of the oil can and scatter the burning fluid all over her person and about the room, crazed with pain she rushed into the open air, where the wind made matters worse rather than better, but her cries soon brought neighbors who by the aid of blankets and the snow soon succeeded in extinguishing the burning clothing, but not until Mrs. Keesley had been seriously burned. The burns are extensive, covering the neck, ears, and the most of the upper part of the body, arms, and hands, and the lower extremities to the knees. The accident is deplorable, but it is hoped that she will recover.

Mason-Stuart. Miss Clara M. Mason and Walter I. Stuart were united in marriage at the Trinity church paragon Sunday morning at ten o'clock by Archdeacon Henry Williamson. The ceremony was witnessed by the step-father and mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Eldis, and the couple left on a wedding trip to Chicago. The bride has been employed as a stenographer in the office of Whitehead & Matheson and the groom is a printer in the employ of the Gazette Printing company.

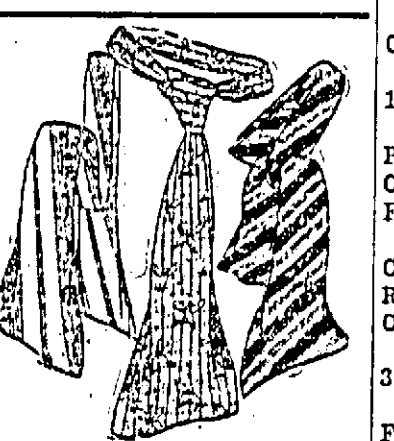

How to String Beads.

In stringing any precious beads, and pearls especially, never use a needle. Simply pass the end of the silk and pass it through the hole. The knotting is also an important point. It must be large enough to hold the bead, but not large enough to show. Pearl stringers use an intricate knot of their own, and that is why it is, on the whole, better to have very expensive jewelry string by a professional. When there is a collar or something of the sort to be made, this is absolutely necessary.

The Law of Speculation. Big men are given to taking profits, while smaller men are laying a basis for profits that may or may not be shown. The law of the fishes in the sea applies in speculation. The big and the little fish have their respective misdeeds, and the small ones are safe when the large ones are not hungry.

Unconscious Socialism. It is one of the most notorious tendencies of human nature to believe that when you have made use of other people's property for a sufficiently long period you are absolutely entitled to it to the exclusion of the real owner.—Estates Gazette.

Scribbler—Not at all, my dear fellow. I used that expression advisedly. I meant my readers to infer that as Mabel entered the room Henderson's heart sounded a call to arms.—Harper's Weekly.

IN THE HOME OF PELICANS

Studying the Huge, Ungainly Birds at Close Range and Observing Their Method of Feeding Their Young.

The first time I ever saw a motley crowd of half-grown pelicans I thought nature had surely done her best to make something ugly and ridiculous. It was a warm day, and the birds stood around with their mouths open, panting like a lot of dogs after a chase, their pouches shaking at every breath. When I went near the youngsters went tottering off on their big webbed feet with wings dragging on this side and that, as if they were poorly handled crutches. The youngsters huddled together by hundreds in a small place. Those on the outside pushed and climbed to get near the center, till it looked worse than any football scrimmage I ever saw.

In this wide area of low islands and water it was necessary, since we wanted to study the pelicans at close range, to adopt some method of hiding. We took a large wagon umbrella covered with a piece of green canvas, that hung down around the sides. This we planted among the trees at the edge of a large colony, and covered the top with reeds. The whole thing soon passed as part of the environment, while from the inside the camera man could point his camera out through a narrow slit in the canvas, take pictures and make observations at will.

One might wonder how such a huge billed bird as a pelican could feed a helpless chick just out of the egg. It was done with apparent ease. The old bird regurgitated a fishy soup into the front end of the pouch, and the baby pelican pitched right in and helped himself out of this family dish. As the young bird grew older, and larger, at each meal he kept reaching farther into the big pouch of his parent until finally, when he was half grown, it was a most remarkable sight. The mother opened her mouth, and the whole head and neck of her nestling disappeared down her capacious maw while he hunted for his dinner in the internal regions.—Collier's Monthly.

RELIGIOUS ART BY MODERN PAINTERS

Two masterpieces in religious art by W. Holman Hunt, who stands pre-eminently among the modern interpreters of art of the Bible. Above "Triumph of the Innocents;" below, "The Light of the World."

At this season of the year when the mind turns to the life of Christ it is interesting to note that many of the recent painters have devoted a large part of their lives to the interpretation of biblical scenes. Among these artists the late W. Holman Hunt is justly credited with being among the greatest. His magnificent panel, "The Light of the World," is a masterpiece, as is also his painting, "The Triumph of the Innocents." Among his religious paintings, in addition to these two, are such well-known art treasures as the "Bride of Bethlehem," "Watching the Crown of Thorns,"

"The Finding of Christ in the Temple," "Christ Among the Doctors," "Morning Prayer," "Angel Treasures as the 'Bride of Bethlehem,' 'Watching the Crown of Thorns,'

Milwaukee, Wis.—Fighting eleven good featherweights in ten months and whipping all of them, five via the knockout route—that is the latest record of little Gene McGovern, who cut a wide swath on the coast. Gene is now in Milwaukee, here he will be matched against Phil McGovern of Brooklyn, Jimmy Walsh of Boston and Battling Shukitz of Toledo. McGovern started out as a prelin-inary fighter around Milwaukee and finally went west. In ten months he met eleven boys and put five of them to sleep and secured decisions over the other six. Now he is back here and is tied up with several good matches. He is a two-hander fighter and is willing to tackle any featherweight in the business except Abe Attell—and he will fight Attell if the latter signs for a finish battle. McGovern has never been knocked out.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE OUTCOME

LOCAL ENGINEERS WATCHING FOR ANNOUNCEMENT REGARDING INCREASE ASKED FOR.

WILL USE ARBITRATION

To Settle the Question And No Strike Will Be Called Is Opinion Expressed by Local Engineers.

Interest in the local yards of both railroads is centered in the outcome of the proposed strike of the engineers which is to be decided upon today by the decision to or refusal of the demands of the brotherhood by the management of the railroad. The statement is made here that the Chicago & North-Western and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads, both of which run into this city, will not be as directly affected by the strike if one is called, as will other lines. A local engineer also expressed the opinion that the strike would not be called as the railroads had offered to make an increase in pay and that if this was refused by the brotherhood officials turning this proposition down, the question would be left to an arbitration board to settle instead of calling a strike. Nearly all engineers in this city, it is said, belong to engineers' or firemen's unions.

WARNING AGAINST THE BOOK AGENTS

Supt. O. D. Antisdell Issues Statement to Teachers Declaring None Have His Authority.

Any person claiming to have recommendations and authority from the county teachers and school boards may school books and apparatus to Rock county teachers and school boards may be set down as a fraud. Mr. Antisdell has requested the Gazette to publish the following:

"Every few months agents for some set of books, or some school apparatus, start out to sell their wares to teachers or school boards. Nearly always there is fraud and misrepresentation by the agents, but in spite of all the warnings given, teachers or school boards are induced to pay big prices for some thing for their schools. Reports have recently come to me that some such agents were at work in Rock county. None of them have in any way communicated with me, nor had any recommendation from me. Last Thursday I found one of these agents in a school attempting to sell books to the teacher, having falsely told her that he had permission from the superintendent to take some of her time in order to show his wares. This agent was told that the sooner he got out of the country the more pleasing it would be to me. Some time before another agent had induced the same teacher to write her name on a piece of tablet paper. Later she got letters asking payment for a note which it was claimed she had signed. Such instances occur again and again.

There may be honest men among these agents, but there are so many rascals that the only safe way is to go to some one you know to make purchases.

If any agent claims to have any authority or permission from me, teachers and school boards may be sure that he is a fraud, for I give no recommendations or authority to any of them. Nor have they any right to take your time during school hours, and interfere with your work. The safest way is to politely but firmly, show them the door. If other papers will copy this warning, and if teachers will notify one another, they will be favoring a public nuisance imposed upon.

O. D. ANTISDELL,
School Superintendent.

MEXICAN REBELS NOW USING TORCH

Reported to Be Burning Property in Reckless Manner.

CREEL DENIES SON'S CAPTURE

Peace Commissioner Amador Gonzalez Reports He Is Unable to Treat With Rebels on Basis of Surrender—All Well Armed.

City of Mexico, Dec. 12.—The rebels still hold Guerrero. Information received from a traveler from the north is to the effect that Gen. Navarro will encounter much difficulty in taking the place. The government issued a statement that no battle has been fought. So far the government troops have met with only insignificant opposition on their march. It is not expected that the rebels will stand and fight. A private dispatch states that the troops are proceeding slowly, fearing an ambush. It is anticipated that the troops will delay their attack on Guerrero some days.

Reports concerning the treatment of Americans in the disturbed districts are conflicting. The government states that the rebels are burning property indiscriminately. Sympathizers with the other side say this is all false. They declare that the rebels are paying for everything they take.

The outbreaks near Puebla and other parts of the country in the south have subsided. Much depends upon the expected battle in the north. Should the government be defeated, it would mean much towards the spread of the dissatisfaction. Should it win, the trouble will degenerate into the work of hunting down bandits. The report that a young son of Minister Creel had been captured by the rebels, who are holding him for ransom, is denied by Senor Creel.

Amador Gonzalez, who headed the unofficial peace commission sent by merchants of Chihuahua to arrange terms with the rebels, has arrived in Mexico City. He said in an interview that the commission had been unable to treat with the rebels, who did not care to speak about surrender. He believed the whole district was in arms. He spoke with several, but it was impossible to get them together to consider a body proposition to lay down their arms. One leader suggested that the government cease operations so as to arrange a conference.

COUNTERFEITERS TAKEN

Operated One of Best Plants in Country, So Officers Say.

One of the Men Arrested Formerly Worked in German Mint—Ranked High in Chosen Profession.

New York, Dec. 12.—Secret service men raided a pretentious frame dwelling house at 604 Academy street, Astoria, Long Island, and bagged two prisoners, quantities of gold, silver crucibles, copper, alloys and mixing machines, which made up, they say, one of the best counterfeiting plants in the country. One of the prisoners got his education in making coins in the imperial German mint in Berlin, and ranks way up in his chosen profession.

The prisoners are Fran Weber, about 55, and Benjamin Letter, ten years younger. Weber is a German, and in his younger days worked in the Berlin mint. He has been in this country for twenty years. Ten years ago he began to attract the attention of the secret service. Counterfeit coins were noticed in his trail, but they were never able to get enough evidence on him to arrest. Two years ago they lost track of him. The coins that were left behind him then as now were counterfeit of $5 and $10 gold pieces.

Timeliness. All measures of reformation are effective in exact proportion to their timeliness; partial decay may be cut away and cleansed; incipient error corrected; but there is a point at which corruption can no more be stayed; nor wandering recalled. CAPTURE GOLD THIEVES

Arrest of Six Men and Woman Occurs After Long Hunt.

The Greater Portion of Sum Stolen, $50,000, Is Also Recovered and in Hands of Federal Officers.

San Francisco, Dec. 12.—A three months' hunt after the thieves who stole $50,000 of Alaska gold bullion from the steamer Humboldt last September ended here in the capture of six men and one woman. Secret Service Agent Harry Moffitt says E. C. Smith and his wife are the chief conspirators and it was in their room in a cheap lodging house south of Market street that nearly the whole of the stolen gold in pieces of metal was recovered and is now in the government's possession.

The other five men were caught in various lodging houses. Smith's procedure was to saw off bits of bullion from the gold bars and peddle them among local jewelers. Suspicion was first directed toward him because of the peculiar light yellow color of these chunks of gold, a color that is found only in gold obtained from the Tanana district, Alaska. As the box of gold stolen from the steamer came from the Tanana district, this clue proved valuable.

The gold formed part of a shipment of $170,000 from Fairbanks to Seattle. There were three boxes and when the shipment reached Seattle one box was found to contain pieces of lead, although the Canadian government seals were unbroken.

About 500 Christmas trees are being set up in groups of three in the form of a pyramid at short intervals about the principal drives, and on the evening of the wedding, each cluster will be lighted with electricity. After the ceremony, and previous to the departure of the bride and groom, there will be a celebration banquet and entertainment to the employees on the estate and their friends.

POSTAL DEFICIT IS LARGELY REDUCED

HITCHCOCK MAKES REPORT

Postmaster General Renews Recommendation for Parcel Post—Loss in Rural Mail Service—Policy of the Department.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued his annual report which states in part as follows:

"A year ago the fiscal records of the postal service disclosed a deficit of $17,500,000, the largest in the history of the country. In the space of twelve months a reduction of $11,500,000 has been made in this deficit the excess of expenditures over receipts as reported for the year ended June 30 last amounting to only $5,848,566.88.

"It is most gratifying to report that this unprecedented reduction has been made without any curtailment of postal facilities. On the contrary, the service has been largely extended.

Parcel.

"The recommendation made in the last annual report of the department for the introduction of a limited parcel post service on rural routes is earnestly renewed. It is believed that as soon as the postal savings system is thoroughly organized the postoffice department should be prepared to establish throughout the country a general parcel post.

"Next to the heavy loss resulting from the low postage rate on second class mail the principal burden into the profits of the postal service is that made by the excessive cost of rural delivery. The large expenditures for rural mail service are far more justifiable, however, than are the much heavier payments required to meet the losses incurred on account of second class mail.

Postal Savings System.

"The board of trustees created by the act of June 25, 1910, to control, supervise and administer the postal savings system has made substantial progress in perfecting a plan of operation.

"After a most careful investigation and numerous conferences with leading bankers the board unanimously decided to adopt the plan of using certificates of deposit instead of pass books.

"The department's present policy, as already indicated, is to extend the service as rapidly as it warranted by increasing population and to accomplish its savings not by the curtailment of postal facilities, but by handling in a more systematic and businesslike manner the constantly expanding volume of the mails. In furtherance of this policy there were established during the year over 1,500 new postoffices, while the rural delivery system was greatly extended by putting into operation 515 new routes, traversing altogether 12,235 miles."

THAT BEAUTY CHORUS.

Boyle Woolfolk, who offers the real musical comedy, "A Winning Miss," with Max Bloom in the leading role, at Myers Theatre, Tuesday, Dec. 13, advertises and claims the most beautiful chorus on the stage. That is quite a broad assertion and the majority of theatregoers will have their doubts about the truth of it; in fact, the management of Myers Theatre expressed their doubts of the claim and inquired of Mr. Woolfolk how he could prove the assertion. In reply, Mr. Woolfolk said: "Of course, beauty is merely a matter of taste, so I am not expressing my own opinion but that of the masses. When I tried out 'A Winning Miss' last spring for a short tour, I made it a point not to engage a girl that was not especially endowed with good looks; most of them I'd seen on the stage either in my own companies or some other company and knew how they appeared to the audience at large, as well as myself, so it turned out that I engaged only girls that were admired from the front."

There is not a girl in the company that I have ever heard called ugly and that is more than I can say of any other show I ever sat through. There are other things, that other managers overlook so their choruses would appear to better advantage. First, their wardrobe makes a vast difference. 'The Winning Miss' chorus are gowned beautifully and each gown was made to suit the individual that wears it. They say clothes don't make a man, but they go a long way towards making a woman. Second, a girl's 'make up.' Some girls don't understand the art of making-up and look homely when in reality they are prettier than some that look beautiful from the front. One of my prettiest girls, the first time she appeared at dress rehearsal looked like a Chinaman, but after being shown how to put on her 'make up' correctly, has been one of the most admired of the entire colorito of beauties. Girls should keep smiling and show animation is another of the

WILSON DEFENDS DIPLOMACY PLAN

Asks Usual Appropriation for So-Called "Dollar Diplomacy."

GIVES DATA ON GOOD RESULTS

Says Employment of Commercial Experts in State Department is Imperative and Cites His Reasons for Statement.

Washington, Dec. 12. — Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson defended the so-called "dollar diplomacy," at a recent hearing before a subcommittee of the house committee on appropriations, which is framing the executive bill. He urged that an appropriation of $100,000, which has been made for the last few years for the advancement of the commercial interests of the country, be allowed to remain in the bill. After explaining the different purposes for which the appropriation had been used, Mr. Wilson spoke of the results of the "dollar diplomacy."

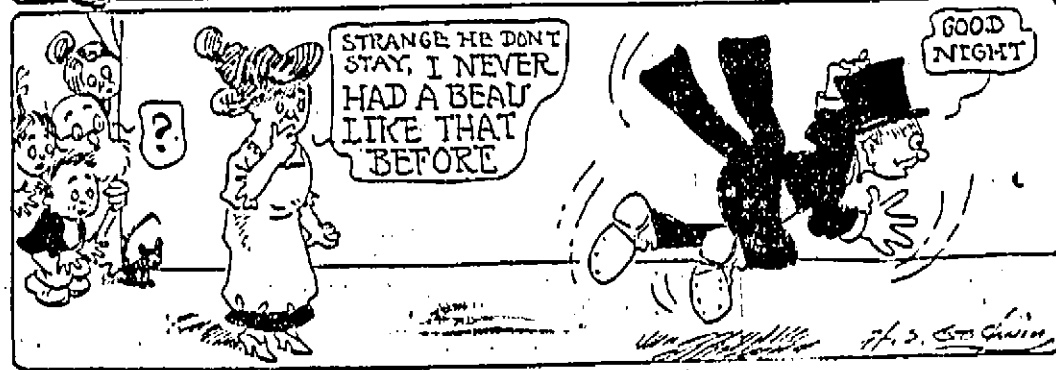

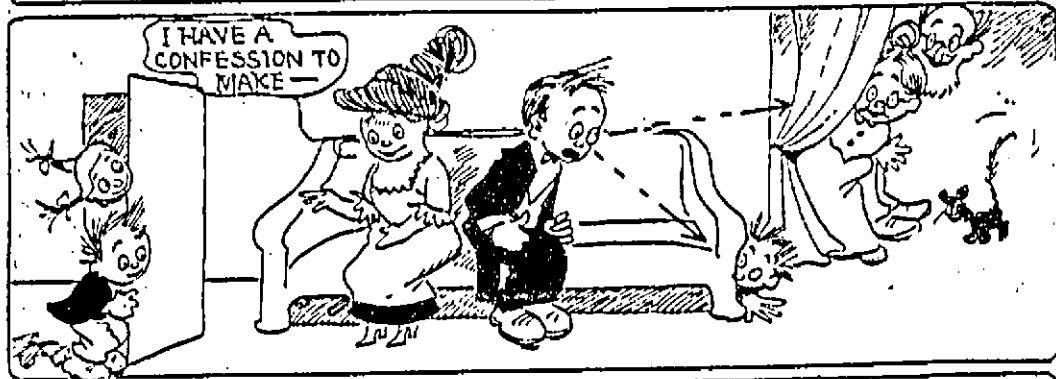

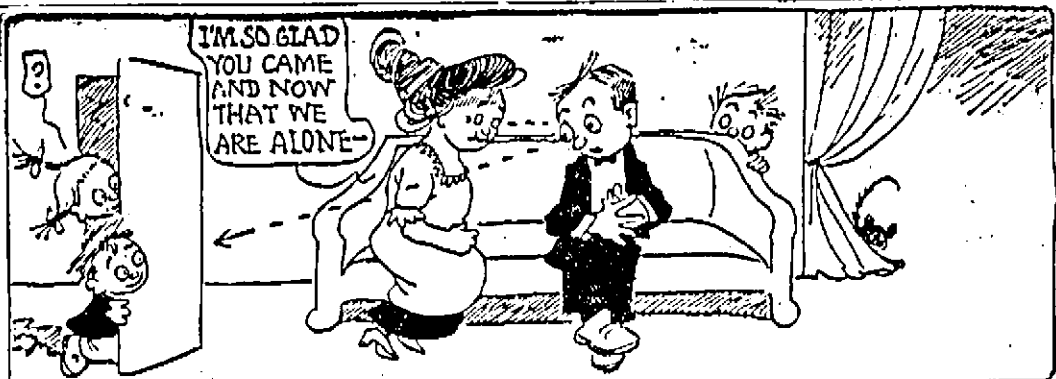

"Of course every one knows," he said, "that it was through the diplomatic efforts of the department of state that we secured for American shipbuilders contracts for two large battleships for the Argentine navy, which will bring here $22,000,000 to go to the American workman and be applied to the purchase of American material. We also got contracts for railway equipment in Argentina amounting to $2,400,000; contracts for the building of two ships for the Cuban government to cost about $900,000; contracts for furnishing armour and armament for the Argentine navy amounting to $1,000,000; contracts for furnishing paper to a large Latin-American newspaper, amounting to about $200,000 per annum; the opening up of the Hukwang loan agreement in China, so as to permit Americans to have an equal share with the citizens of foreign government in financing and supplying materials for a railroad in central China, to cost upwards of $30,000,000; contract for construction of a railway in northern China to be financed with American capital and to be supplied in part with American material, together with harbor work and other improvement in Manchuria, representing an investment of $40,000,000. "We are also assured of succeeding in concluding a loan to China of $50,000,000, which is to be used in the reform of the Chinese currency system, which will greatly improve conditions in China."

Mr. Wilson explained that it was necessary to employ in the state department especially trained commercial experts to keep in touch with foreign trade opportunities in all parts of the world. "The advantage of having an expert personnel," he said, "lies in having enough people here so that nothing can be overlooked in any part of the world that can help America. In having somebody who has the time and the expert knowledge to study the question and to draft and recommend and work out the action which will do the most good."

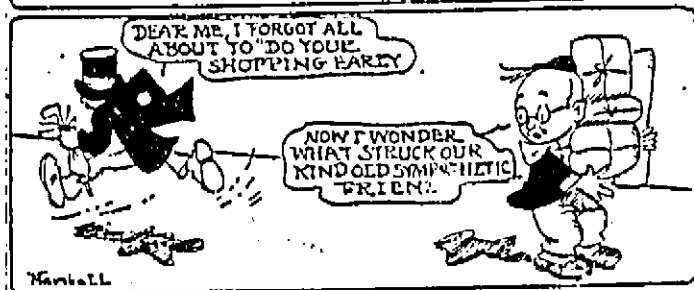

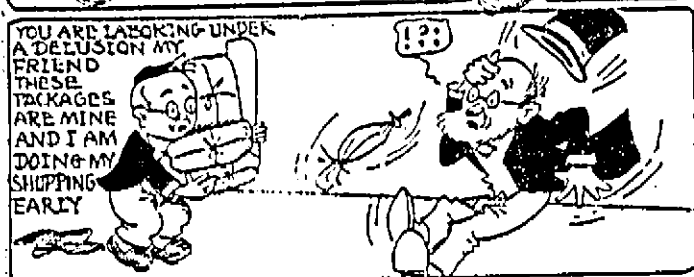

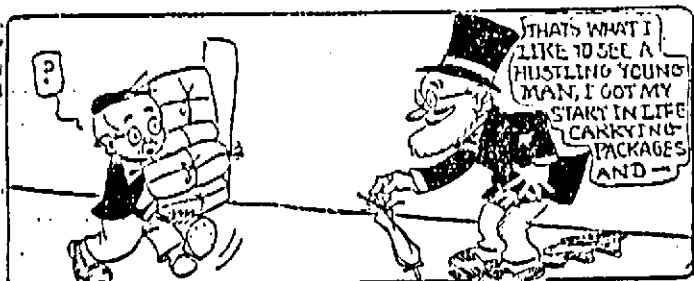

"In Great Britain they have half a dozen of these bureaus in their foreign office divided the world in a politico-geographical way—experts dealing with American countries, with far eastern countries and so on. The same is true of Russia and in France and in Germany. An astounding degree of efficient operation exists between the foreign service and the commercial and industrial foreign enterprises in the case of every first class commercial nation today. We are just adopting what our competitors have had before us."

XIV.—Disease Prevention In the Home

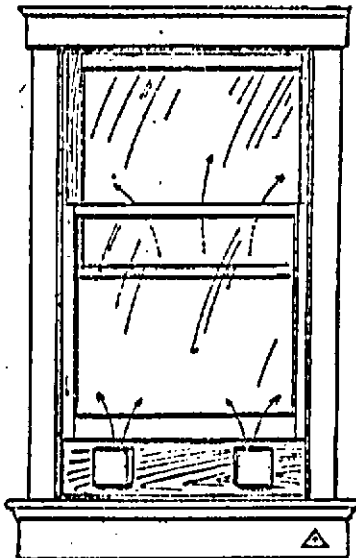

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

WHO would not give a trifle to prevent what he would give a thousand worlds to cure? Dr. Young, who wrote these words, had a habit of "seeing things at night," but not in the popular sense of this expression. He wrote "Night Thoughts," but saw very clearly the principle which the medical profession is now carrying out well expressed in the homely old phrase, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Diseases of the Past.

The horrors of pestilence and unceasing disease that afflicted our forefathers are almost unbelievable in these days, and yet during the dark ages they were accepted as a matter of course and variously ascribed to "acts of God" or "the evil one," according to the point of view.

PROPER WINDOW VENTILATION.

(Have plenty of window space and so arrange your rooms that they are thoroughly ventilated and well lighted.)

We do not read in the sprightly romances of Dumas and others who have thrown a glamour over history that "itch" was a common, not to say general, affliction at the court of France and that the great Napoleon suffered from this trouble because no one knew its cause or simple treatment. It seems difficult to realize that in the old days a person who was not pockmarked from smallpox was conspicuous in the streets of London.

The custom of sleeping in bunks in the wall, of using rushes or straw for door covering, in the meshes of which refuse scraps from the table and other filth were allowed to accumulate, was regarded in the old days as a natural and healthful mode of existence. The custom of dipping germ infected fingers into large dishes of food containing the general supply for the family was followed by the Four Hundred during the middle ages, when the "black death" and other scourges spread a desolation of which it is difficult to form any conception in these days of comparative "sweetness and light."

But we must not lay too much flatteringunction to our souls. Taking into account the advances in science and knowledge of the causation of disease, we are today relatively just as neglectful as our forefathers. Reckless and careless habits in defiance of disease risks are still common enough and are responsible for a tremendous waste of life.

The Fall in the Death Rate.

In the registration area of the United States the death rate has fallen from 26.0 per 1,000 in 1880 to 15.4 in 1909. In Massachusetts the death rate has fallen from 10.4 in 1880 to 17.5 in 1907. In England and Wales it has fallen from 18.5 in 1880 to 14.7 in 1909; in Sweden from 17.1 in 1880 to 14.0 in 1909, and in France from 22.8 in 1880 to 14.0 in 1908.

This is a splendid showing, but when we analyze the material from which these figures are derived we find that the death rate among young people has fallen more than 50 per cent, while the death rate among the middle aged and elderly has either been slightly affected or markedly increased, according to the locality investigated.

In Massachusetts the increase in the death rate at advanced ages is really startling and doubtless reflects a condition general throughout the country. We know that the degenerative diseases affecting middle life and old age—apoplexy, heart disease, Bright's disease, arterial diseases, etc.—have increased 100 per cent during the past thirty years in the registration area, and an increase in the mortality at the ages affected would naturally follow, such as is exhibited in the Massachusetts statistics.

But the limit of prevention and improvement among the infectious diseases that affect young lives has not yet been reached. These diseases, such as typhoid, cholera infantum, tuberculosis, etc., should be absolutely eradicated.

Proper sanitation, especially in the rural districts, is greatly needed and a more thorough observance of the precautionary measures against tuberculosis and other infectious maladies.

Prevention of Degenerative Diseases.

Diseases of the heart, kidneys and blood vessels (apoplexy, paralysis) are caused by high pressure living, over-eating, intemperance—any condition involving undue nerve strain. What may be done to guard against these troubles? The most rational protective measure is to treat your body just as you would treat your business or your automobile or your yacht. Have it overhauled and examined periodically. What would you think of a man who put out to sea in a vessel that had been used for years and never overhauled or inspected for leaky boilers, pipes or seams? Is it not obvious that he invites shipwreck? But the average mechanic, farmer or business man will embark on a life voyage and wait until something goes wrong before he consents to an overhauling, and then too often in his conceit and foolish egotism he derides the physician who warns him and boasts that he will outlive the doctor or the insurance company that refuses to carry his risk.

Value of Periodical Examinations.

It must be apparent that this human machine should be periodically examined for evidence of commencing strain and impairment. Many a valuable life could be saved for years of happy and useful existence if the early symptoms of disease were detected and the manner of living changed. A downward course may readily be checked if the disease has not gone too far. The wise man, therefore, will consult his doctor at least once a year and listen patiently to advice regarding the habits of eating, drinking and housing. The periodical inspection of the whole family is also desirable. Give the children a chance to be molded and guided to health and strength instead of permitting them to grow up like weeds or untamed vines. The correction of eye troubles, removal of adenoids, tonsils, etc., proper habits of bathing, eating, etc., may completely change the destiny of your children.

These principles are coming to be recognized as of such extreme importance that one large life insurance company has arranged to give to its policy holders the privilege of free medical examinations once a year, believing that the saving of lives will more than offset the expense involved.

Care in Choice of a Home.

In choosing a habitation remember that sunlight, fresh air and dry soil are money savers. By properly choosing your location you may save the interest on the mortgage in doctors' bills. See that your home is on firm, well drained ground. Made ground, however carefully packed and graded, is very likely to cause dampness in the cellar and around the foundations. Do not settle near a marshy pond or sluggish stream if you can help it. A southern exposure is desirable.

Have plenty of window space, and so arrange your rooms that those most constantly occupied—bedrooms, living rooms, etc.—are thoroughly ventilated and well lighted. The best room in the house should be used by the family, not by an occasional guest.

If the soil is damp the subsoil must be drained below the foundation and the cellar floors and walls thoroughly cemented. Absolute dryness may be attained by having hollow walls. Bricks are undesirable for cellar walls, as they absorb moisture. Stone is likewise porous and retains moisture. Slate or cement coatings will obviate the danger.

Heating.

If you have a hot air furnace be sure it is of good quality, gas proof and that the air supply is drawn from outside and not from the cellar or any damp or dusty location. See that a water reservoir is attached to the furnace and kept filled.

If other methods of heating by direct radiation are employed some provision should be made for changing the air of the room. Many special ventilating systems have been invented, and if means permit these should be investigated and a desirable one installed when the house is built. Stagnant, vitiated, overheated, dusty or damp air is a menace to health. Exclude these conditions from your home. It can be done.

Water Supply.

If there is no general water supply system in your locality, beware of shallow wells, surface springs or water from any doubtful source. A deep driven well far removed from any possible source of contamination, should be secured, if possible; otherwise cistern water, held in a slate or cemented cistern, is safer. Suspected water should always be boiled.

I have elsewhere dwelt upon the importance of proper sewage disposal, but it cannot be too often stated that the old fashioned methods employed in the country are barbarous and unworthy of a civilized nation. Study this question carefully and adopt a system, whether surface irrigation or portable dry earth closet, etc., that will protect your family and your neighbors from disease. If greater care is not exercised in this regard the state must step in and act vigorously to protect the community from typhoid, hookworm and other maladies due to soil pollution.

The Home Atmosphere.

It is not sufficient to keep physical germs out of the home atmosphere. The germs of discord, strife and confusion are also prejudicial to health. A household where nothing ever happens and everything always worked smoothly would be a great bore, but there is a "golden mean," characterized by patience, forbearance, system and order in the household relations and government.

When She "Primps."

She walks in beauty like the night, As some romantic singer said; her eyes give forth a starry light, her lips are of a cherry red; across the floor she seems to float; she seems to me beyond compare a being perfect—till I note the way she has done up her hair. She must have toiled through half a day to build that huge, unwieldy mass; she must have used a bale of hay, and strips of tin, and wire of brass; her sisters must have helped to braid, her mother wrought and tinkered there, and butter, cook and chambermaid all helped to wrestle with her hair. And after all the grinding toil, and all the braiding and the tins, the one effect is just to spoil her beauty and make other people cuss. She walks in beauty like the night where nights are most serenely fair; but, Julius Caesar! she's a sight, when she's got on her Sunday hair!

His Limitations.

The Open Mind in Travel.

To leave oneself behind is perhaps the first and best initiation for travel, says Harper's Bazaar. As one stops on the train or goes up the gang plank, one says farewell to that warlike and aggravating personality who has lived so close to us for months, demanding, exacting, questioning, exhausting us with anxieties and brooding troubles. It requires no entire on-again of Montaigne's to prove to us how "that the spirit often blundereth itself." Fresh fields and pastures new, a head and the hour to throw aside the old and put the best foot foremost brings a new heart as readily as conversion. Care is shifted from the shoulders; the back is turned upon teasing, reiterated obligations, and adventures and strangeness, so exhilarating after a long sleep of the accustomed round, are ahead. Montaigne says that some one reported to Socrates that a certain man was in no wise improved by his travels, and he replied: "I can well believe it since he took himself along."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

YESTERDAY I named over some of the articles which, by a canvass of masculine minds on the subject of proper Christmas gifts for themselves, I found to be strong first favorites.

For today I promised to mention some of the also runs. Leather articles, for some reason, presumably because they can hardly be tatty or loud, have the almost universal stamp of masculine favor. So if you are at your wit's end as to what to get for father or brother Henry or Cousin John, or just black, I suggest that you stop into a leather store and loor around. Leather cases for traveling appointments, leather bill folders, address books, diaries, card cases memorandum books—almost anything of this sort ought to solve your masculine puzzle. The small soft leather bags which so many men carry to and from their work are another desirable in this line.

As to whether jewelry of any kind makes an acceptable gift for a man, is a point on which men differ. Cuff links, scarf pins, shirt studs and watch fob are among the few possibilities in this line. But if you venture in this direction you had better remember two or three things. In the first place, while a woman can hardly have too much jewelry a man can, and if he has one pair of cuff links, two or three scarf pins, one watch fob and a set of shirt studs the average man does not care for anything more along that line. In the second place, make simplicity the emphatic keynote of your selection, and in the third place, be sure it's a con- ventional. The distinctly new, smart thing that delights a woman's heart would usually appeal to a man as altogether too ultra.

There are two gifts which no man thinks a woman can select for him and which every woman thinks she is the one exception of her sex who can select.

Of course you know what they are—tobacco and cigars. Ask a man if he likes to have a woman give him for Christmas and you have dangled a red rag right in the bull's eye. He begins at once to tell you of some of the suffering he has undergone in this line. A cousin of mine insisted that I accompany him to his room and let him illustrate his tale of woe for me. And when I saw some of the outrages in green with blue stripes, brown knickerbockers combined with blue, lavender with bluish polka dots, I acknowledged he had indeed been a martyr. His last exhibit was a red and orange striped. He held it up to my admiration. "Would anybody be caught dead at a dog fight with a thing like that on?" he queried. Much to my surprise the tie was in tatters. "But you seem to have worn it a good deal," I pointed out. He grimaced unabashed. "Guess not," he said. "When I heard the aunt who gave it to me was coming to the house I did that with my knife. Pretty clever piece of work I flatter myself. Fooled you, didn't I, titchie, and it fooled her too."

Which incident I relate to put my feminine readers on their guard against similar masculine duplicity. Personally I think men are much more rampant on this subject than they need be. Some women pick out red and orange ties but that is no reason for condemning all women's taste. I thoroughly believe that so strong is this unreasoning masculine prejudice, that if a woman bought him a plain black tie or a box of cigars he would say the tie was too loud and the cigars were impossible.

However, since they do feel that way, and there are plenty of other gifts for men I suppose these two are the most honored in the breach.

A match box, by the way, is another article seemingly most desirable, which will probably not receive a masculine welcome. I have tried very hard to find out why this is and have been given the varying reasons that the boxes do not hold enough matches, are too short for the common matches, and take up too much room, and are too much bother to get at.

Pajamas, white shirts, smoking things, pictures, a manicure set, pocket knife and fountain pen are among the other articles mentioned as desirable.

gather until a long string is made, then twist and crumple this into a soft limp thread and crochet with a large bone hook into a basket. Use a simple stitch, and if desired, a bit of cord the same color may be used to crochet over in what is called in raffia work "the lazy square" stitch. The handles should be made of covered wire, wound with the paper and a bunch of ribbon violets should ornament the side.

The Kitchen Cabinet

There are three kinds of people in the world; the wife, the woman and the cook. The first accomplishes everything, the second enjoys everything, the third fails in everything.

Delightful Southern Dishes. A history of some of these old southern dishes affording a glimpse into old creole hospitality makes interesting reading. The following recipes are a few of the many that make creole cookery famous.

The greatest difficulty in getting a southern dish to taste natural is the fault of the measurements. The old cooks had no standard of measurement and in passing on a recipe to another the results were never very uniform.

Chaurice.—This is a distinctive creole sausage and the oldest and most highly flavored of all sausages. Chop four pounds of lean and two pounds of fat fresh pork. Season lightly with salt, white pepper, cayenne, and sweet red peppers. This seasoning distinguishes the creole sausage from the more common variety. Chaurice must be seasoned very hot. Mince two large onions and a clove of garlic fine, add to the meat, then the following portion of herbs and spices, the herbs minced fine: One sprig of thyme, three sprigs of parsley, two bay leaves, two teaspoonfuls of cayenne, one teaspoonful of chopped sweet pepper, two teaspoonfuls of white pepper, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half a teaspoonful of allspice. Mix all together and fill the casings.

Chaurice is fried for breakfast and served garnished with parsley. A few chaurices thrown into the kettle with boiling cabbage or beans add greatly to the flavor.

Creole Jambalaya.—This is a Spanish-Creole dish, which is a great favorite in New Orleans. Cut one pound of fresh pork into pieces half an inch square. Chop two onions very fine and mince two cloves of garlic and two sprigs each of thyme and parsley and a bay leaf. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a sauce pan and add the onions and pork; stir frequently. When slightly brown add a slice of ham chopped fine, the garlic and an eighth of a teaspoonful of ground cloves. Cook for five minutes, then add a dozen chaurices and cook five minutes longer. Add three quarters of a cup of beef stock and cook ten minutes. Add a cup and a half of mashed rice, pepper and salt and cayenne to taste, stir often and serve hot.

MARTHA BERRY.

Founder of Famous Industrial School.

Believing implicitly in the fundamental truth that education should include hard work at both the hands and mind, self-sacrifice and cooperation, Martha Berry founded the Berry school.

Today the Berry school has 2,000 acres of land, a dozen or more modern buildings, a magnificent dairy with scores of fine cows, mules, lambs, wood-working and blacksmith shops, all the equipment of a big model farm, for this is a place where hands and brains are linked together. The property is easily worth $200,000, and the school has $100,000 endowment. There are 27 officers and instructors. Each student—they range in age from 15 to 28 years—pays $50 a year, and there is a deficit of $50 on each one, which must be made up by contributions. The boys work two hours a day and everything from building beds to cultivating the farm is done by the student body. Sixty boys worked last summer to pay expenses for the coming year. Five are in mountain school work; four are working their way through college; two are on the farm, and three are in other occupations. In the history of the school practically every boy's course is marked by some great sacrifice. In all this country there is no institution where self-sacrifice is student—they range in age from 15 to 28 years—pays $50 a year, and there is a deficit of $50 on each one, which must be made up by contributions.

The "Six" Senses.

In a primary school examination one of the questions was with regard to the five senses. One of the bright pupils handled the subject thus: "The five senses are: sneezing, sobbing, crying, yawning and coughing. By the sixth sense is meant an extra one which some folks have. This is sneezing."—Woman's Home Companion.

Getting Rid of One Nuisance. The latest invention in telephones is called the "television," which enables one to see the person with whom he is talking. This is an improvement anyway in that it will rid the world of that nuisance who calls you up on the phone and then insists on you guessing who it is.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

By ROSE TERRELL.

The flat dweller who cannot have a Christmas tree for the birds might decorate the windows with overgrown and fasten on popcorn and apples as well as crusts of bread and suet. If beautiful designs are shown and sets with edges worked by hand in seal-ropes may be purchased at a reasonable price. Where the purse will permit this saves much of the drudgery. A ring of cyclots or a spray of French laid embroidery worked at intervals make the gift a very valuable one. If the recipient affects a monogram it may be worked on one side very artistically or the cyclots may be arranged in a fancy design. The work is rapid and yet beautiful.

For a boy's room a set of curtains in brown acrim, stencilled in rich red tulips with green leaves, may be selected.

A table runner or dresser cover in the same design, but on either heavy cloth or leather will delight his soul—for boys delight in a comfortable home-like room as much as girls appreciate their dainty nests. The design shown may be used as a repeat border and used in various arrangements. The stencil has been used for simple decorative work. For portiers for a boy's room or a library is a heavy material called monk's cloth, which comes in beautiful grays. This is a delightful background for very careful work. The stencil must be broad in design and bold in color to harmonize with the ground. Care should be taken to scrub the color in carefully or the work will look patchy on the rough cloth.

Gifts should be wrapped with care. The very charm of Christmas giving is in the dated packages tied with ribbon and with a bit of mistletoe or holly twisted in the fluff of ribbon on top of the package.

A pretty receptacle for a small gift is made by cutting inch-wide strips of the best quality of tissue paper in a light green. Paste the strips together until a long string is made, then twist and crumple this into a soft limp thread and crochet with a large bone hook into a basket. Use a simple stitch, and if desired, a bit of cord the same color may be used to crochet over in what is called in raffia work "the lazy square" stitch. The handles should be made of covered wire, wound with the paper and a bunch of ribbon violets should ornament the side.

There are two gifts which no man thinks a woman can select for him and which every woman thinks she is the one exception of her sex who can select.

Of course you know what they are—tobacco and cigars. Ask a man if he likes to have a woman give him for Christmas and you have dangled a red rag right in the bull's eye. He begins at once to tell you of some of the suffering he has undergone in this line. A cousin of mine insisted that I accompany him to his room and let him illustrate his tale of woe for me. And when I saw some of the outrages in green with blue stripes, brown knickerbockers combined with blue, lavender with bluish polka dots, I acknowledged he had indeed been a martyr. His last exhibit was a red and orange striped. He held it up to my admiration. "Would anybody be caught dead at a dog fight with a thing like that on?" he queried. Much to my surprise the tie was in tatters. "But you seem to have worn it a good deal," I pointed out. He grimaced unabashed. "Guess not," he said. "When I heard the aunt who gave it to me was coming to the house I did that with my knife. Pretty clever piece of work I flatter myself. Fooled you, didn't I, titchie, and it fooled her too."

Which incident I relate to put my feminine readers on their guard against similar masculine duplicity. Personally I think men are much more rampant on this subject than they need be. Some women pick out red and orange ties but that is no reason for condemning all women's taste. I thoroughly believe that so strong is this unreasoning masculine prejudice, that if a woman bought him a plain black tie or a box of cigars he would say the tie was too loud and the cigars were impossible.

However, since they do feel that way, and there are plenty of other gifts for men I suppose these two are the most honored in the breach.

A match box, by the way, is another article seemingly most desirable, which will probably not receive a masculine welcome. I have tried very hard to find out why this is and have been given the varying reasons that the boxes do not hold enough matches, are too short for the common matches, and take up too much room, and are too much bother to get at.

Pajamas, white shirts, smoking things, pictures, a manicure set, pocket knife and fountain pen are among the other articles mentioned as desirable.

CHAPTER XV.

THE MARQUIS OF TWELFTH STREET.

It was Isadora who found out first what was in her father's mind, because she saw the advertisement which Alexander the Great had written for the papers. It lay on the parlor table in clear black and white for any eye to read when Isadora came to clear away the litter of odds and ends that Emma, the hired girl, might lay the dinner table.

"Oh, pa," she gasped, "is that what you're going to do? He won't stand being advertised."

"Fool!" said Alexander. "I tell you he won't. He'll quit. He's afraid the police are on to him anyhow."

"Milton ain't lodged no complaint. Nobody has or I'd have kicked do fooler out first thing when you told me who he was. Nobody ain't got to touch him."

"And nobody ain't going to keep him when he goes that," added Isadora, pointing to the paragraph written in Alexander the Great's clearest handwriting.

"He needn't see it unless you blab, silly girl!" said her father. "What for should he read newspaper advertisements? I guess he got some 'uns' also to do."

"Somebody 'll tell him."

"People come here to eat, not talk. Anyhow this goes!"

And it went.

It went to several papers, and, though Alexander the Great paid only for the insertion of small paragraphs in the columns of the journals, he chuckled to himself in anticipation of receiving far more valuable advertisements than he was to receive. In matters of business within the scope of his capabilities Alexander was seldom wrong. That was why he was great. True it might be that "Lord Loveland of the Waldorf-Astoria" (as Tony Kidd had dubbed him) was a back number and had been superseded in public esteem by at least two promising murderers and one extremely lively divorcee. But Tony Kidd's enterprising eye lit on Alexander's advertisement, while it was still as fresh as tomorrow's bread, in the issue of the New York Light, which was in the making, and Alexander's own paragraph was quickly quoted.

"Lost at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the Marquis of Loveland. Found, ditto, at Alexander the Great's, in Twelfth street. If you want to be served by a lord dine at Alexander's for 25 cents, marquis included. 'You eat your dinner; Walter Loveland does the rest.'"

Tony was very busy just then, having an important errand out of town by the first train in the morning. But he secretly commissioned an understudy to be at Alexander's when the red restaurant should open its doors to enter breakfast and while seeming to enter to sketch the new English waiter. The understudy was not to question Loveland himself, but if possible Alexander, and was not to let the waiter see that he was under fire of attention. Notes of Loveland's appearance as well as a drawing must be made for Mr. Kidd's benefit.

When he came back from the country late in the afternoon, however, Mr. Kidd at once recognized the cleverly executed sketch. There was no longer any doubt in his mind that the young man who had waited the door in his face at the Waldorf-Astoria was now "the sinner" in a cheap downtown restaurant. Next morning there was half a column on a good page of the Light, including space for the understudy's fine portrait of a tall young man in evening dress, with a coffee pot in one hand and a milk jug in the other, and even the printers grinned at the heading, "The Marquis of Twelfth Street—Now Acquired, Title."

A persistent ringing of the telephone in Fanny Milton's bedroom waked her out of a delightful dream. She was on shipboard again. It was moonlight, and Lord Loveland, was telling her that he really cared a great deal more for her than for Lesley Deannier. She confessed that she liked him, too, and he was just asking her to come and reign over Loveland castle as well as his heart when the distant though disturbing notes of an amateur concert in the music room of the Manhattan turned definitely into the shrill-burr of the wretched telephone. The dream broke like a rainbow bubble, and Fanny sat up in bed, disappointed with life.

She sent herself by the telephone and snatched up the receiver as if she were going to strike it. But she soon settled down to an absorbing interest in the play of eight made its merry raid upon Alexander's.

The Italian marriage feast was already in full swing. But neither the bride party nor any of the thirty or forty other occupants of the restaurant were too deeply absorbed in their own affairs to notice the arrival of the "swells."

"Hello! I suppose you ought to feel honored," muttered Leo Cohen, who had just arrived from the west and was paying a surprise visit to the establishment of his future father-in-law. He had demanded fried oysters and coffee and had greatly enjoyed giving the order to the handsome new member of Alexander's staff.

"Get a move on, if you please," he finished, pointing his black mustache and prodding his white teeth with a gold toothpick as he stared at the main made notorious by today's newspapers. Pressing his lips tightly together, Loveland turned away to pass the order to Black Dick, the cook.

It was at this moment that Mrs. Milton's party entered the restaurant, and Mr. Cohen murmured his comment to Isadora, who at her father's suggestion was hovering about that young gentleman's table, looking her prettiest.

Tony Kidd at Mrs. Milton's request had telephoned for a table for eight, to be withdrawn as far as possible from the big front window, that dinner and dinner need not be criticized by the man in the street, and as Loveland pushed back the red drapery, carrying a tray loaded with ice cream for the Italians, he looked straight into the eyes of Elmer Coolidge, Mrs. Milton and the newspaper man, Tony Kidd.

Not since early morning had he found a moment's rest. He had had no appetite and would have had little time to eat even if he had been hungry.

The day's work had irritated and unnerved him up to the last notch of his endurance. No battle of his brief but lively South African experience had cost him, physically or mentally, as much as these thirteen hours of waiting on Alexander's customers, and the sudden sight of those familiar faces, smiling coolly on his shame, came upon him like a volley of bullets from a quick firing gun.

Involuntarily he took a step back, knocked the edge of the tray against the doorpost and dropped it with a crash of breaking crockery. Plates smashed, spoons flew, and ice cream gushed among the ruins. Blinkey and the Polish waiter sprang to their colleagues' assistance, not displeased, however, that he should be disgraced. Alexander scolded, the Italian bride screamed and had to be reassured by the bridegroom, Leo Cohen.

Disagreeably, Isadora jumped, and Mrs. Milton's party looked at each other from under lifted eyebrows.

In the confusion of the breakage Loveland found himself again. Pride came to his rescue—not mere hurt vanity, but a truer pride than had ever made his heart beat high.

As he bent down to pick up the broken plates he told himself that these people, who had come to plinge him still deeper in humiliating depths, were not worth a pang and should not see that they had power to hurt him.

For one short instant he detected Mrs. Milton so intensely that he half regretted his vow to spare her name at all hazards, but by the time he had picked up the last piece of broken crockery he knew that if everything were to come over again he would do as he had done.

"I take that out of your wages," said Alexander, loudly enough to be heard by those who sat round the table near to the curtained door.

"Of course," replied Loveland, his voice steady.

"I shouldn't have thought the British aristocracy would have such clumsy ways," Leo Cohen remarked audibly to Isadora, then called jocularly across the room. "Say, Alexander, got any mock turtle soup tonight?"

"No," growled Alexander.

"Thought you might be making a specialty of it this week," went on Cohen.

"Why?"

"Oh, cute idea for an advertisement—mock turtle served by mock marquis."

A titter went round the room among those who had enough English to understand the joke, and there was even a faint, suppressed sound of laughter at Mrs. Milton's table.

Loveland turned white. He had an impulse to hurl the broken dishes now collected on the tray straight at Cohen's oiled black head, and a week ago he would have done so without stopping to reflect. But he had lived longer in six days since landing in New York than in as many years before, and he was learning a lesson which no one had even tried to teach him in the past—mastery of himself.

Pale, but perfectly composed in appearance, he did not even look toward Cohen and seemed to take no more notice of the young man's impertinence than of the barking of some mongrel dog, too feeble to be kicked.

Arduously Loveland longed to get out of the room and to stay out; but, though he could have escaped by carrying the broken dishes into the kitchen, he would not deign to turn his back on the enemy. He gave the tray to Blinkey and obeyed a gesture of Alexander's which sent him to take a new order from the Italians.

"I don't believe he'll come to wait on us," whispered Mrs. Milton to Tony Kidd. "If he doesn't it will have been hardly worth the fog of coming all this way downtown. His handling our things would have been the best fun of all."

"I think you'll get your fun," muttered Tony, but he was not enjoying himself.

"Of course the man's a fraud and deserves all he's got," the journalist thought. "But I'll be hanged if I like seeing him take his medicine. He's a good looking one, anyhow."

HELEN WARE.

Eight years ago a swimming teacher; today a Broadway star

New York—Eight years ago Helen Ware was teaching swimming in the public baths of the city of New York, in order to secure enough money to pay her tuition at a dramatic school, and to further increase her savings, she asked and secured a position as a "singer" with Maude Adams in "The Little Minister." On her opening night she attracted the attention of the stage manager of the company by the remarkable manner in which she lent color to the scene in which the supers were employed, and was promoted to the position of leader of the mob, with an increase of salary, at $10 a week. This led to an engagement with Blanche Bates in "Under Two Flags." With this company she was given the part of understanding of the star. One night, Miss Bates being ill, Miss Ware played the part at a moment's notice, and secured a signal hit. This firmly established her as an actress of promise. From that time on by leaps and bounds.

who jumped to the very forefront of American actresses. Her interpretation of the part of the heroine in Charles Klein's great play, "The Third Degree," stamped her as one of the most emotional actresses on the stage.

Miss Ware is starring now under the management of Henry H. Hurler in "The Deserters," a military drama. She plays the part of a detective, who is sent out to capture a deserter. She apprehends the man who is sent after, only to fall in love with him, and this situation forms the crux of the play.

Soothed Boston Babe.

The Boston infant was restless and peevish. Its nurse had crooned "Rock-a-bye, baby, on the tree top, when the wind blows the cradle will rock," a long time in vain. The babe would not fall under its influence. Then its fond mother sang to it gently: "The vibrating atmosphere causes the soporific receptacle where in the babe lies enmeshed to oscillate in the arboreal apex." No need to chant further. Instantly soothed, the babe, with a satisfied smile, fell away in slumber.

Manners of the Boy.

For some reason many mothers do not give the same attention to the manners of their sons as to those of their daughters. Yet the boy's training is even more important than those of the girl. The majority of young men leave their homes shortly after they come of age, and many leave before that period, and they come into contact, into intimate association frequently, with men who have had but little training in the niceties of life, and all too frequently these evil communications corrupt the good manners of the more fortunate class. But the boy who is trained to courtesy from his childhood can be trusted in any environment.

How Keen Is Your Taste?

From a series of experiments recently made at the University of Kansas it is evident that the average person can taste the bitter of quinine when one part is dissolved in 152,000 parts of water. Salt was detected in water when one part to 640 of the liquid was used. Sugar could be tasted in 228 parts of water and common soda in 48. In nearly all cases women could detect a smaller quantity than men.

Cures Coughs

After Ordinary Preparations Fail—Wonderful New Mixture Made at Home.

An investigating chemist of national reputation just recently discovered in a compound known to the medical world as "essence mentholozene," a most wonderful virtue as a curative, laxative cough syrup, and the best part of it is, it can be made at home about 8 times cheaper than one can buy labeled cough syrup. It immediately relieves the severest cases of asthma, bronchitis, coughs and chronic colds in the lungs, and it effects a cure, too, because it has a laxative action when 8 to 10 doses are taken daily. In very short order it will loosen the tightest cough and one can feel it "taking hold." In its curative action, obtain of the drugist, or have him order from wholesale firm 25c. essence mentholozene. Empty it into a pint bottle. Shake a syrup with a pint of sugar and a half pint of boiling water, stir and let cool. Then fill up the bottle with syrup, shake well, and take a teaspoonful 8 to 10 times daily or as needed. Give children less according to age. It is very pleasant to take.

COWS IN HILARIOUS FROLIC

Make Bacchanalian Raid on Cider Mill, Eagerly Accumulating Joyous Old Jags.

Rockburg, N. J.—When the workers at the Warren county cider mill, near here, went home the other day at noon they left the trough of apple wash uncovered, with the result that a herd of ten cows from an adjoining farm, wandering in from the inclosure, ate most of it. Farmhands were attracted to the place a short time later, noticing a disturbance among the bovines, and found the yard of the mill in an uproar.

The cows were frisking about, kicking into the air and assuming attitudes that in a human being would have been described as hilarious. Puzzled at these antics, the farmers became worried when one after another of the cows sank to the ground. Believing the prevalent epidemic of hog cholera had reached the supposed immune cows, they summoned a veterinarian, whose diagnosis relieved the anxiety of the situation.

"Just a Jersey cider jag of untoward proportions," was the verdict. The cows' heads were bathed in ice water and in a short time they recovered, since which time they have refused all food, subsisting on copious draughts from the pasture spring. All have now recovered. None have been near the cider mill since, and to prevent future bacchanalian raids on the part of the herd a new cover for the trough is in place.

Two New Popular Games.

London.—Two new games are popular at country house parties this season. One is called fantasia, and is a sort of table bowls on which heavy balls are made. The other is roulette with cards. Four packs are used, the players placing stakes on cards instead of ordinary numbers. Hostesses are delighted with these two games, which serve to amuse visitors unable to play bridge.

Trial by Jury.

American and England and her colonies are the only countries in the world which have the jury system in the sense it is understood here. It is true, however, that throughout Europe so-called juries are employed in the trial of certain cases, but their functions are limited and perfunctory in character, their determinations being dictated by the presiding judge of the court. It is their duty merely to hear the evidence and render the verdict prescribed by the court.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist.

CEREAL DIET TESTS.

I have again completed a series of experiments with exclusive cereal diets, confirming the results of former experiments, made by myself and others, that certain well marked benefits accrue from the exclusive use of rolled oats, thoroughly malted, or of the whole wheat grain or rye, well washed and steamed, but that the benefits are rather due to the avoidance of improper mixing of inharmonious foods, which tends constantly to deharmonize nutrition, than to any special merit in the cereals as food. A young man at Pittsburgh has been largely relieved of catarrh and has greatly increased endurance, as proved by tests, from the use of an exclusive diet of oats, with deep breathing exercises. But cereal staple, especially cooked, much like sugar, causes an accumulation in the blood and tissues of a "juice" which is the foundation for "catarrh," or other diseases, according to the determining germ. Constant exercise tends to burn off this carbohydrate; foul air without exercise encourages its retention, and with bad mental conditions tends to consumption especially. Beans and peanuts contain too much albumen, but with a proper balance of dry whole wheat bread form a better diet than white bread, potatoes and meat. Nuts and fruits are the ideal.

ECONOMY IN HIGH PRICES

Well Dressed Man Explains How He Buys Expensive Clothes and Wears Them Many Years.

Two well dressed men, at least they were so far as one not thoroughly expert in what good clothes are could judge, were talking about the cost of them.

"I paid $80 for this suit," said the older man, "and—"

"Go whiz!" interrupted the younger, "that's too much for me to pay for one suit of clothes. Why, I gave only $15 for this suit I have on."

"Very nice looking suit, too," admitted the other.

"It was marked down from $20," the younger confessed, as though desirous of apologizing for wearing a $15 hand-me-down. "As far as I can see," he went on with some degree of self-gratulation, "you don't look to be $65 better."

"How long have you worn yours?" inquired the older.

"This is the second year. Two years as long as I wear a suit."

"And this is the eleventh year I've had mine. Of course, I haven't worn it every day, and I have had the tailor keep in good condition, as you see, though this is the last year of its life, so your $15 suit at $7.50 a year is about as extravagant as my $80 suit at $7.30 a year, isn't it? Besides, I've been wearing an $80 suit from the best tailor in town while you are wearing the $15 hand-me-down picked up wherever you happened to see the reduction sale. I practice economy in all things, and for that reason I wear the best clothes I can buy and look like a millionaire if I'm not one."

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe.

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; 1/2 to 3/4 cup shortening; 3 level teaspoons K C baking powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the dough enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

Have you seen the new K C Cook's Book? It is a beautiful little book that simply must be successful every time if the simple directions are carefully followed. You would gladly pay 50 cents for this valuable book, yet we send it absolutely free upon receipt of the colored certificate tucked in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder. Just fill out, and send to K C Baking Powder Co., Chicago. Small card do not have Cook's Book certificate.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Dec. 12, 1870—Jottings—A pair of Indians wandered into town on Saturday afternoon and quickly accumulated a crowd of boys and dogs to whom such curiosities are an unusual sight. Less than a decade of years have passed since the presence on the streets of Janesville excited no attention, and general remarks, but now they are walking exhibitions and are always favored with an audience.

There will be a meeting of the parishioners in Christ church, on Tuesday evening to consider the report of the special committee on plan of organization for church work and social intercourse.

A spiritualistic mass meeting of the southern Wisconsin spiritualists, will be held at Deloit, on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 7th and 8th. A. A. Wheeler, editor of the American Spiritualist, and Rev. J. O. Barrett, state missionary, will be present.

Mrs. Ward lectures on "The Lost Ark" at Lapham's hall tomorrow night. The price of admission has been reduced to twenty-five cents.

The Colwell stock of drugs has been sold to Mr. S. Helmstret, who will continue the business.

A woman in Deloit named Henrietta Pratt, committed suicide by taking chloroform on Sunday night of last week.

Notwithstanding the exceedingly unfavorable condition of the weather last night the attendance at the Sabbath school anniversary at the Congregational church was good. Some six hundred persons, young and old assembled to listen to and to take part in the exercises. The little folks acquitted themselves in a manner which brings words of praise from all who were present, and the encouragement they received on this occasion should stimulate them to still nobler efforts in the future. The report of the Superintendent, Mr. J. T. Wright, was the happy effort of a man whose heart is warmly enlisted in the Sabbath school cause and who is devoting the best years of his life to the advancement of religion among the young. His advice to the children was excellent and was tempered with that spirit of kindness which cannot fail to meet with a response in the hearts of his youthful listeners.

"FIBREX" The ware that wears.

THE BEST OF ALL BABY BATH TUBS

The one perfect tub for babies—that's the verdict of mothers who have used the "Fibrex."

A "Fibrex" tub is hygienic—absolutely. Not a crack or joint to collect dirt and germs. It can't absorb odors. It is cleaned in an instant. It will keep sweet and wholesome for a lifetime.

It's the lightest baby tub made.

Yet it is practically indestructible. It can't leak and it can't rust. It will outlast half a dozen ordinary baby bath tubs.

Its surface is warm to the baby's touch. None of the unpleasant chill of the tin tub.

It's good-looking—white enamel finish inside, pink or blue outside.

It's the lowest priced tub worth buying.
